

AFST-237: Africa and International Law and Organizations

A study of strategies advanced by African states to change the world system by using international organizations of influencing their decisions to address issues of concern to Africa.

Credits: 3

Program: African Studies