

BIOG-426: Food Microbiology Lec/Lab

This course is designed to give students an understanding of the role of microorganisms in food processing and preservation; the relation of microorganisms to food spoilage, foodborne illness, and intoxication; general food processing and quality control; the role of microorganisms in health promotion; and federal food-processing regulations.

Credits: 3

Program: Biology (Grad)