

CHEG-425: Intro to Biomedical Engineering

This course teaches students to understand the application of engineering principles to the study of various functions of the human body, including breathing, muscle movement and blood circulation.

Credits: 3

Program: Chemical Engineering