

MUSD-250: Graduate Research in Music Education

This course provides graduate students interested in music education research with an introduction to techniques of educational research, with an emphasis on design and analysis, and with a critical review of selected current research studies in music education procedures for reviewing research literature.

Credits: 3

Program: Music Education