

SWDS-309: Intervention Planning & Strategies

(Advanced course, Practice Methods III) Develops advanced knowledge of social work planning and intervention strategies based on social work treatment theories and models for practice at the individual, family and group level. Selected approaches for social work interventions are examined to determine the basic assumptions of the model, theoretical underpinnings, nature and depth of problem identification and assessment, procedures and processes appropriate for selected models, culturally competent application of the model, indications and contraindications for use, values and ethical considerations in intervention planning, and termination and evaluation.
