

SWPS-340: International Social Development

This course examines the history and context of international social development. It explores the significance of globalization and how to engage diverse public and non-governmental organizations. Special attention is given to African and Caribbean countries. The social and economic justice implications of international social development are also discussed, along with human rights and the unique experiences of women globally.

Credits: 3

Program: Social Welfare Policy & Services