

XINB-500: Managing the Global Business

A framework is developed for analyzing and examining the complexity and diversity of the international business environment. Theories and analysis relevant to major national and regional business environments are examined. Organizational and functional issues are discussed, including firm structures and industry analysis. Includes optional twoweek travel to China, India, or South

Credits: 3

Program: International Business (EMBA)